STATE CANNOT DONATE MONEY FOR ROAD TO FAIRGROUNDS--BROWN

Highway Commission Has No Legal Right To Aid Fair Grounds Road

The state highway commission has no legal right of the Fairgrounds road, according to the opinion handed down this afternoon by Attorney General Brown in reply to the inquiry of the state highway commission. According to the charter of the city of Salem, the city is expressly excluded from the use of state money upon its streets, according to Mr. Brown's opinion. The county has no jurisdiction over the city streets, and where the county has no authority it is the opinion of the attorney general that the state has none. The opinion to the highway commission follows: Gentlemen: This is to answer your inquiry as to whether the state highway commission has authority to appropriate to the use of the city of Salem $2000 from the "state road fund" of Oregon for the purpose of improving a public highway within the corporate limits of said city, commonly known as the Fairgrounds road, which road was anciently a public highway of the county. The right to expend the public funds within your control are purely statutory and every prerequisite to an exercise of such right must exist before you appropriate to any part of such fund for use in any way. The grant of authority and jurisdiction conferred upon the city of Salem by its charter over all roads and streets within its corporate limits; the powers and duties of the commission, as defined by chapter 339, General Laws of Oregon, 1913; the general course of legislation in this state, and the interpretation thereof by the supreme court, in my opinion, present an insurmountable barrier in the way of expending any of the moneys of said fund in paving the said highway within the corporate limits of the city of Salem. I am of the opinion that the state highway commission has no lawful right to donate $2000, or any other sum of money whatever, from said road fund for use for the city of Salem in improving the said highway. This is not a question of helping a worthy improvement; one that is said to fall heavily upon abutting property owners along said highway, but it involves the matter of limitation placed by law upon the highway commission's authority and discretion in expending the moneys raised by a one-fourth mill tax upon all

International Finance Controls Stock Market

(Copyright, 1915, by the New York Evening Post.) New York, Aug. 30.—The course of the stock market today was apparently governed more by the tension of international finance than by international diplomacy.

It could hardly be said that the news from Berlin to Washington gave any new view of a settlement with Germany—except insofar as it seemed to confirm belief in the overthrow of the Von Tirpitz ring, and in Berlin's unqualified acquiescence in our demands. Prices failed to make any further favorable response. There were some early advances of a point or less in which railways participated, but this recovery ceased before noon; then for an hour or so there was a pause and a general settling started. The last hour was marked by declines throughout the market. There were occasional recoveries, probably due to usual outside buying, but the market closed much unsettled. In the face of the receipt of $19,500,000 in gold from Europe over Sunday, sterling fell to 4.61 against 4.63 Saturday, 4.65 1/2 a week ago and 4.67 1/2 two weeks ago.

of the assessable property of the state and deposited with the state treasury for a well defined purpose. The opinion follows with a full quotation of the law upon the subject and the attorney general closes by stating: "The section of the highway which it is proposed that you should expend $2000 is wholly within the corporate limits of Salem. In other words, it does not lead into or towards the chief market centers of the state, but is wholly within the corporate limits of a market center. Not only does the law of the state creating said highway commission fail to authorize you to improve a portion of a highway wholly within the corporate limits of a city, but taken in connection with the charter of Salem you are excluded from any such right. Very respectfully, yours, GEO. M. BROWN.

American Shipping Grows Despite Contrary Reports Washington, Aug. 30.—American shipping shows an increase for foreign trade of 737,623 gross tons over last year, despite stories of its demoralization through untoward legislation, the department of commerce announced today. On June 15 of this year, 2760 American ships were engaged in foreign trade compared with 2405 last year. It was stated. This year's gross tonnage of 1,813,575 represents an increase of about three times the tonnage of any previous year, as well as being the highest total since 1863 when the gross tonnage was 2,064,114. It was pointed out that more efficient steam tonnage is now in service than at that time. "Our tonnage nearly equals the tonnage under the French or Norwegian flags," the announcement said.

COBB & MITCHELL TO GET MILL There is a possibility, and even a probability, that Cobb & Mitchell of Portland, who are heavily interested in timber in the Siletz basin, will take over the plant of the Falls City Lumber company at Falls City, in which event the institution will resume operations and continue without abatement. This is the hope that is being handed out by lumbermen, who allege that they know whereof they speak, and likely has some foundation. It is said that Cobb & Mitchell have been financially interested in the construction of the logging railroad which extends into the timber of the Falls City Lumber company, and which has now reached a point where it may be extended into the timber of the former firm without large expense, the line being over the summit.

Claims Championship For Big Trout Catch

George Johnson and Arthur R. Wilson claim the distinction of having caught four Rainbow trout, each 24 inches long, in a lake that has never been shown on any published map. This lake is in a section that had never been surveyed until the 10th of this month. It is located on section 33, township 10, range two, west, and is six miles south-west of T. H. Thomas farm, the last farm house on the road up Thomas creek above Jordan. In the first map to be published, the lake will be named Eleanor, after Eleanor Beckman of St. Johns, Ore., who was the first lady to climb to the lake. The hills around the lake have an altitude of 3,660 feet, and the lake is 215 feet lower. It covers about 19 acres and the waters are perfectly clear, and a sounding line of 150 feet did not touch the bottom. It is fed by one creek, that rises from the rock about 300 feet away. A trail has been blazed to the lake by the survey party, but it is difficult to get to it with a guide. Six years ago, 1,200 rainbow trout were planted in the lake by John Sauter and Henry Shankes. The lake is oval in shape, resembles Crater lake, although of course much smaller, and is 45 miles from this city.
